

CORPUS CHRISTI CALLER
By The CALLER PUBLISHING COMPANY.
MEMBER ASSOCIATED PRESS
JOHN W. STAYTON, Managing Editor.

Subscription Rates—
By Mail
Daily and Sunday, one year, $5.00
One month, .50
Sunday only, one year, 1.50
BY CARRIER
In Corpus Christi and Kingsville
Daily and Sunday, one year, $3.20
Per week, .30

Subscribers when ordering a change of address should give both old and new addresses. Carriers for The Caller pay cash for their papers and are unable to extend more than a week's credit to subscribers. Their margin of profit is small, and a few losses will be keenly felt. Subscriptions are due the carriers, and not The Caller Publishing Company. Complaints of service, orders to start or discontinue delivery of the paper, and changes of address, should be addressed or telephoned to the

CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT
PHONE 5*

Address all business communications and make out all checks, drafts, money orders and express orders to The Caller Publishing Company. All items, articles and communications should be addressed to Editor, Corpus Christi Caller.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice in Corpus Christi, Texas.

CIRCULATION BOOKS
OPEN TO ADVERTISERS

Saturday, July 17, 1915.

Mackensen has a Scotch name but he fights in German.

England may well consider Lincoln's declaration about the house divided.

Kiss and make up—that's what it used to be. Now the makeup precedes the kiss.

Billy Sunday wants $100,000 to put on a revival of Dallas. Billy must have heard of that celebrated jail.

Europe's war debt increases so rapidly that wholesale repudiations may be expected, along with swift democratic tendencies.

Houston Chronicle: "Will which doesn't exist is filed." This reverses the process. Wills that do exist are most frequently filed—all to pieces.

The Manchester Guardian charges England with falsifying reports. What of it? Does the Guardian imagine the world hasn't salt enough to season all reports?

It is said that rain will not be welcome for at least ten days, owing to the harvesting of forage crops. We are glad to know this. It is fine to have prospects.

Any physician who states that he can cure appendicitis without the use of a knife is one of two things. Beware of him and his philanthropy. Both are miserably abominable.

Four thousand New York policemen are going to go to a school opened for the benefit of members of the force. They will probably study sharp division of the spoils.

Italians have captured the Manzana castle that was at one time occupied by Dante. Just beyond the castle they will probably find the original of the famous "Inferno."

Edison is perfecting a formula for the manufacture of aniline dyes. To the United States this work will probably be more important than his affiliation with the navy.

A Supreme Court of five members is essential to the people as a whole; for a hopeless deadlock makes no hope for case, and the law's delay, to this extent, may be averted by a vote of the people.

Governor Ferguson opposes the separation of the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College. In this particular instance, we believe he opposes the will of the people.

A thorough test of the White Point gas is to be made. If it should prove to be of commercial quality, it will mean more to Corpus Christi than oil, although most people are perfectly willing to risk both.

Thaw's pocketbook has been badly flattened, but he has one consolation; if he needs a little cash he can appear in vaudeville or act for the movies. Just think what the people would pay to see Harry and Evelyn doing a little team work!

Let Corpus Christi plan for the holding of a great summer chautauqua next year, and let this year be devoted to projects underway. The times are not flourishing; it is difficult to see ahead. Ewbank deserves patronage. In the fall, a Canseway celebration must be held. Everything takes money, and money is scarce.

Rumors of oil strikes are thick. The least hint sets them whirling. They are no good sign. They show the eagerness of the people to grasp some fortuitous aid. Hereafter, let's be very careful of our statements; very certain that they are founded on fact. Practical jokes are well enough in moderation, but it is a foolish joke that throws a town of 18,000 inhabitants into temporary turmoil. Let's have more sweat and less conversation.

application and trial. Projects for disarmament, for an international court, or for the possibility of diplomatic negotiations, should not be regarded as vain imaginings because they depart from ancient practice, but as inventions by which, after trial and selection, men may eventually forge the tools by which to establish a new and better practice. In short, the upward road of progress can be ascended only by one who both keeps his footing secure and looks ahead with ardor and imagination.

What Change?

"Learn one should teach again, bolder and sturdier" dramatically declared Brother Grimes during the experienced meeting. "I was a miserable wretch, wading in the sloughs of sin and wallowing in the depths of uncertainty. I lived so wrong and hated do right. I lied, I stole, I cheated, and was as most condemned scoundrels in this town; but now, brother and sister, what do you suppose being about do change?" "What change?" passionately demanded Brother Grimes, whose grudge against the speaker was one of long standing. —Kansas City Star.

There are indications of betterment in the situation as it relates to Germany and the United States. The German Ambassador has notified Secretary Lansing that the last note forwarded by his government was intended to pave the way for mediation, the United States to act between the nations at war. Of course this means nothing in itself, but it reflects the spirit of an attitude far from hopeless, although we are convinced that England will not favor outside interference; for England, having something to gain by the participation of this country in the struggle, will naturally hold back. Even so, war is not imminent. While there is conversation there is hope.

The strike in Wales proves the perilous position of England, the apathy of its people. No such division divides the forces of Germany's efforts. Mistakenly or otherwise, Germans are for the Empire before all else. They understand the terror of war and its responsibilities.

More helpful than all wisdom is one straight of simple human pity that will not forsake us.—George Elton.

I think I made a mistake in asking the question of expense with my wife. "What do you mean?" she scolded in an automobile, and I had better entry told her that I couldn't afford it. Well, now she wants it worse than before!—Detroit Free Press.

Wise or more, lots; we're no more. The sorrow is in vain. For victory must be won the secret always will never make any gains.

Thomas Pease.

He posed as a railroad director. Well, was he a fake? Not exactly. He provides over the information to pass at the Union Station.—Hartford Courant.

The pessimist was suffering from depression. "Every bone in my body aches," he complained. "You ought to be glad you are not a herring," said the optimist. —T. J. T. T.

Asleep on Preparedness.

A wild hour was whetting his tusks against a tree when a fox coming by asked why he did so. Fox, said he, "I see no reason for it; there is neither hunter nor sound in sight, nor any other danger that I can see at hand." True, replied the bear, "but when the danger does come, I shall have something else to do than to sharpen my weapons."

It is too late to whet the sword when the trumpet sounds to draw it.—Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Safety First.

In a certain village down South there was a physician noted for his reckless automobile driving. One day when he answered the telephone, a woman's voice asked him if he were going out driving that afternoon.

"No, I hardly think I will have time this afternoon," replied the doctor. "But why do you ask?"

Well," replied his anonymous questioner, "I want to send my little daughter down town for some thread, if you are not—Everybody's."

Familiar.

"Now I want this and I expect that likewise so and so," declared the cook.

"That will do for you," said the lady of the house. "You act like a foreigner attempting to win the sympathy of the United States."—Lafayette Courier-Journal.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Corpus Christi People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Dilated kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine full of sediment, treacly or mucous, or tinged by a coating of scalding. The back may ache, headache and dizziness may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect those aches and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills—the name that Dr. H. C. Dan, of New York, gave to his prescription.

L. E. Hornerman, a farmer and carpenter, 1418 Laredo St., Corpus Christi, says: "My back became so lame that I was laid up with it for a week and could hardly lift anything. It was extremely painful for me to bend my back to do much moving about. Three boxes of Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills removed the pain in my back and I have had no trouble since."

Price $6.00 at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills—the name that Mr. Hornerman had. Foster-Mitton Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

DRESDEN, Germany, July 18.—The first high German officer to die in captivity since war has been recorded, is Lieutenant General von Haugk, for chief squerry of the King of Saxony, who has just been reported dead of kidney trouble in Dresden, Russia.

General von Haugk fell into the hands of the Russians last October while he was in charge of a set of gifts being transported to the German soldiers. For a time he was given every possible favor but when the report spread in Russia that Baron Kurff, the governor of Warsaw, captured by the Germans, was being severely handled, the same treatment was accorded General von Haugk.

He was born in Liosice in 1850, the son of a high magistrate in Saxony, and married the daughter of the Prussian General von Tietzen. He was for a time aide-de-camp to the King of Saxony, and since 1889 his squerry.

application and trial. Projects for disarmament, for an international court, or for the possibility of diplomatic negotiations, should not be regarded as vain imaginings because they depart from ancient practice, but as inventions by which, after trial and selection, men may eventually forge the tools by which to establish a new and better practice. In short, the upward road of progress can be ascended only by one who both keeps his footing secure and looks ahead with ardor and imagination.

What Change?

"Learn one should teach again, bolder and sturdier" dramatically declared Brother Grimes during the experienced meeting. "I was a miserable wretched, wallowing in the sloughs of sin and wallowing in the depths of uncertainty. I lived so wrong and hated to do right. I lied, I stole, I cheated, and was as most condemned scoundrels in this town; but now, brother and sister, what do you suppose being about do change?" "What change?" passionately demanded Brother Grimes, whose grudge against the speaker was one of long standing. —Kansas City Star.

PARAGRAPHS

"I've promised to go to supper with some one else, Mr. Blaumon, but I'll introduce you to a very handsome and clever girl." "I don't want a handsome and clever girl; I want you."—Katrina City Times.

Stomach—"Howard, when you get to be the head of the family, what will you say to your children when they are brought to you?"—Small Howard.—"Oh, I do like people does. I'll tell them how awfully good I was when I was a kid."—Stony Mountain Herald.

More helpful than all wisdom is one straight of simple human pity that will not forsake us.—George Elton.

I think I made a mistake in asking the question of expense with my wife. "What do you mean?" she scolded in an automobile, and I had better entry told her that I couldn't afford it. Well, now she wants it worse than before!—Detroit Free Press.

Wise or more, lots; we're no more. The sorrow is in vain. For victory must be won the secret always will never make any gains.

Thomas Pease.

He posed as a railroad director. Well, was he a fake? Not exactly. He provides over the information to pass at the Union Station.—Hartford Courant.

The pessimist was suffering from depression. "Every bone in my body aches," he complained. "You ought to be glad you are not a herring," said the optimist. —T. J. T. T.

Asleep on Preparedness.

A wild hour was whetting his tusks against a tree when a fox coming by asked why he did so. Fox, said he, "I see no reason for it; there is neither hunter nor sound in sight, nor any other danger that I can see at hand." True, replied the bear, "but when the danger does come, I shall have something else to do than to sharpen my weapons."

It is too late to whet the sword when the trumpet sounds to draw it.—Philadelphia Evening Ledger.

Safety First.

In a certain village down South there was a physician noted for his reckless automobile driving. One day when he answered the telephone, a woman's voice asked him if he were going out driving that afternoon.

"No, I hardly think I will have time this afternoon," replied the doctor. "But why do you ask?"

Well," replied his anonymous questioner, "I want to send my little daughter down town for some thread, if you are not—Everybody's."

Familiar.

"Now I want this and I expect that likewise so and so," declared the cook.

"That will do for you," said the lady of the house. "You act like a foreigner attempting to win the sympathy of the United States."—Lafayette Courier-Journal.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE.

Corpus Christi People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease.

The symptoms of kidney trouble are many. Dilated kidneys often excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine full of sediment, treacly or mucous, or tinged by a coating of scalding. The back may ache, headache and dizziness may occur and the victim is often weighted down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect those aches and there is danger. Delay often proves fatal.

You can use no better endorsed kidney remedy than Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills—the name that Dr. H. C. Dan, of New York, gave to his prescription.

L. E. Hornerman, a farmer and carpenter, 1418 Laredo St., Corpus Christi, says: "My back became so lame that I was laid up with it for a week and could hardly lift anything. It was extremely painful for me to bend my back to do much moving about. Three boxes of Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills removed the pain in my back and I have had no trouble since."

Price $6.00 at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Dr. Dan's Kidney Pills—the name that Mr. Hornerman had. Foster-Mitton Co., Prop., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

DRESDEN, Germany, July 18.—The first high German officer to die in captivity since war has been recorded, is Lieutenant General von Haugk, for chief squerry of the King of Saxony, who has just been reported dead of kidney trouble in Dresden, Russia.

General von Haugk fell into the hands of the Russians last October while he was in charge of a set of gifts being transported to the German soldiers. For a time he was given every possible favor but when the report spread in Russia that Baron Kurff, the governor of Warsaw, captured by the Germans, was being severely handled, the same treatment was accorded General von Haugk.

He was born in Liosice in 1850, the son of a high magistrate in Saxony, and married the daughter of the Prussian General von Tietzen. He was for a time aide-de-camp to the King of Saxony, and since 1889 his squerry.

General von Haugk fell into the hands of the Russians last October while he was in charge of a set of gifts being transported to the German soldiers. For a time he was given every possible favor but when the report spread in Russia that Baron Kurff, the governor of Warsaw, captured by the Germans, was being severely handled, the same treatment was accorded General von Haugk.

He was born in Liosice in 1850, the son of a high magistrate in Saxony, and married the daughter of the Prussian General von Tietzen. He was for a time aide-de-camp to the King of Saxony, and since 1889 his squerry.

COTTON JUMPED A DOLLAR AND A HALF A BALE DURING YESTERDAY

THE DAY IN THE COTTON MARKET

Quotations From All Markets
Published Daily by The Caller Daily
The Corpus Christi Cotton Exchange,
Nueces Hotel Building.

WEATHER SUMMARY

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE—WEATHER BUREAU.

The Liverpool market came in about as expected, with an advance of three and a half to four points, amazingly adding up until at the close of yesterday points higher than at the close of the day before.

The American market opened 100 points higher, or practically the low point of the day, with a market shift and with a nervous temperament, quotations rising with the narrow fluctuations still about 1.15 when the market developed a strong undercurrent and rapidly advanced to thirty points above the low of approximately 32.75.

Advice to the Corpus Christi exchange attributed the higher prices to the death of South Texas, in addition to portions of the market and the report of a condition of the crop 100 miles two weeks ago and the covering of the little snow interest in the market.

Liverpool rose about ten points this morning.

Regarding the market, rise in the market B and R, best of New Orleans, has the following to say:

The exchanges' leaders of the market was more pronounced today owing to short-swinging influence in the continuance of the war reported for spots in Liverpool and for grain in the market in South Texas and there is fear of high temperatures in the Atlantic where it is claimed the grain will stand frosty but will stand in the event of a cold spell.

The title market makes the condition of the crop 100 miles two weeks ago some improvement was expected.

It is identified with banking and farming in the interior and western Federal reserve banks are advertising plans to take care of the crop when it is harvested and warehouses for storing are increasing.

New York Cotton Open High Low Close
September 918 916 912 910
December